Stowers Restored to Office Order Ambulance, Fire Truck

Defeated by Voters Three Weeks Ago, Restored at Joint Session

Ousted by the electorate at the annual election three weeks ago, Dr. Nathaniel Stowers was restored to the school committee Monday evening at a joint session of the selectmen and the school committee in as strange a political resurrection as Andover has ever seen. In a four-cornered fight the first of the month Dr. Stowers had been defeated by Herbert P. Carter, William A. Doherty, and John M. Erving. A week later Mrs. Ralph N. C. Barnes, committee member, passed away, and two weeks after her passing, three weeks after the public had expressed its wish at the polls, Dr. Stowers was once again placed on the board, this time to serve in Mrs. Barnes' stead until the next annual election when he will again face the electorate.

There were ten voting, Miss Mary E. C. Geagan being absent because of a long-continued illness. Six votes were necessary for appointment, and on the seventh Dr. Stowers had the six votes after several shifts had been made. On the first four Paul M. Cheney led with four votes, but on the fifth there was a swing away from him, with Dr. Stowers taking five votes. These he held through the sixth ballot, and in the seventh he picked up the one extra needed for appointment. Others voted for included Mrs. A. Graham Baldwin, Mrs. Kenneth Fisk, and Mrs. Bertha Clark.

The ballots follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Stowers	3	3	2	3	5	5	6
Cheney	4	4	4	4	3	2	2
Mrs. Baldwin	2	2	2	1	0	1	0
Mrs. Fisk	0	0	0	1	2	2	2
Mrs. Clark	1	1	2	1	0	0	0

The votes were all taken by secret ballot.

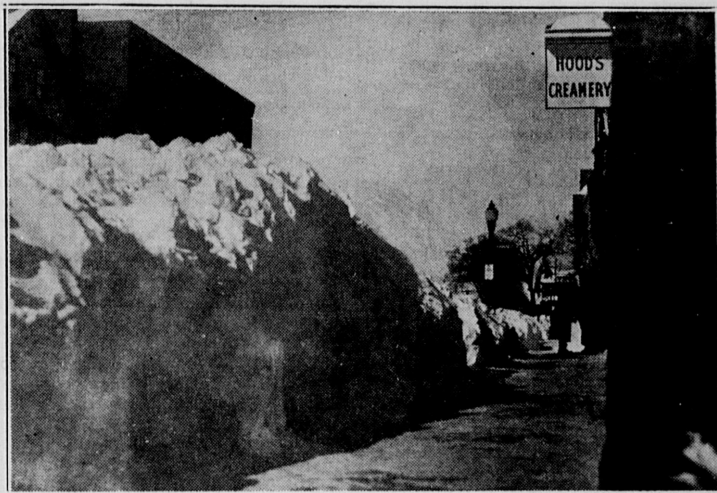

Officers Elected by Andover Clan

Hector Pattullo was elected chief of Clan Johnston, 185, O.S.C., at the annual election held last Friday night. He and the other new officers will be installed April 14.

Others elected were: Tanist, Fred Scott; chaplain, William Watt; recording secretary, James Caldwell; financial secretary, George B. Petie; treasurer, Thomas B. Gorrie; senior henchman, William Vannett; junior henchman, Edward Brown; seneschal, Peter Anderson; warden, Thomas Thin; sentinel, Alfred R. Harris; trustee for three years, Edmund Sorrie; physician, Dr. John J. Hartigan.

THIMBLE CLUB TO MEET

The Thimble club will meet at 2.30 Thursday afternoon at the Square and Compass club house. Moving pictures will be presented by the H. P. Hood company. This is an open meeting and guests are invited.

That queer-looking white substance in this picture is what is known as "snow," a meteorological phenomenon which used to be a winter characteristic in these parts. This picture was snapped in the winter of 1936 by Walter Billings on Main street.

MYSTERY RIDE

A mystery ride will be held by the Margaret Slattery class of the Free church on next Tuesday evening. Miss Janet Barwell is in charge.

WHIST PARTY TONIGHT

A whist and domino party will be held tonight at eight o'clock at the home of Mrs. Ann Driscoll, 10 Cuba street, by the Clan auxiliary drill team.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Monday, March 22, John Hickok celebrated his birthday by entertaining a few of his friends. Those who were present were: Warren Lewis, William Barnard, Franklin Roberts, Gloria Fields, Mary Louise Irwin, Marjorie Howes, David Markert, Theresa Whalen, Burton Bachellor, Nancy Rice, and Pauline MacMackin.

Games, contests, and dancing were enjoyed before and after supper.

Eliminating Main Street Bay Windows

Andover's business men and town officials had a gym class Wednesday night; they had the effects of the gym class on Thursday night.

Twenty-seven of the faces seen along Main street every day appeared at the first business men's gym class to be held in the new Memorial gym on Wednesday evening at seven. The faces looked just as they do ordinarily, but the rest of their anatomies showed what wonders tailors can do. There was hardly an abdomen that wasn't quite a bit to leeward of where it should be; some of them listed just a little, while others had lost their hold entirely.

The first few minutes were spent in fooling around, trying to resurrect the boyhood days when the ball WOULD go in the basket. Then director Donald Dunn launched the calisthenics program, with a young lady playing the piano and the men providing the other sound effects.

They stood up and waved their arms around, then they waved their shoulders around. Next they sat down and waved some more. Finally they lay down, and went through another series of muscle-crunching exercises, while three janitors stood in the corner and roared for some reason or other. It wasn't any laughing matter.

It was quite a picture: real estate men showing lots in a big turnover, old age assistance agent trying to ward off old age, insurance men in an attempt to keep their wives from collecting on their policies for a while, town officials interested in other figures besides the tax rate, lawyers going through a physical third degree, newspapermen trying to get everything in the correct form.

After the calisthenics games started: handball, bowling, basketball, volley ball. The last drew the largest crowd of participants, most of whom were playing it for the first time, and if you'd been there, you wouldn't have had to be told that.

They weighed in when they started, and weighed out when they left, and the general effect was a loss of two points in Andover Stomachs, Inc. Next week most of the men are planning to return, while a few of the town officials are going to regain the two pounds by attending the banquet to Fred Butler down in Salem. Any other men in the town are invited to

Cruising Car Also Ordered—Ambulance Expected in Thirty Days

A Henney ambulance at $3280, an American LaFrance fire pump at $6500, and a Plymouth sedan cruising car at $550 were ordered by the selectmen Monday night after bids had been received from a number of different concerns. The ambulance is expected to be shipped from Illinois in thirty days and the fire truck from Elmyra, N. Y., in 65 days.

The ambulance exhausts all but $20 of the $3300 appropriation, the fire truck takes the whole appropriation, while the cruising car leaves $84 of the appropriation, part of which will be used to buy a radio. The fire truck is said to have $800 worth of extra equipment on it.

Other bids on the fire truck were: Sanford $6145, five percent, ten days; Seagrave $6550, five percent, thirty days; Maxim, $6500, net, cash ten days; Ahrens-Fox $6250 plus equipment $589.65, net ten days. The American LaFrance at $6500 is net ten days.

Other bids on the ambulance: Packard $3100; Studebaker $3259.85; G.M.C. $3146.55; Miller body, Cadillac chassis $3000; Miller body, LaSalle chassis $3225; Buick $3275. Another bid of $3300 was presented on a Henney.

Other cruiser bids: Smith Chevrolet, sport sedan $560.50; two-door sedan $494.50; Shea Motor Sales, four prices on different models, $775, $787, $805, $817.50, with $265 allowance of old car; Ford $807 with $250 allowance; Harig, $417, $443, $491, $516.

One of the Boston papers which indulges in the practice of telling who was with whom where, had a little squib the other day about Cocoanut Grove's Marcelle Poirier dancing with "Prof." Rudy Vallee, he of the—oh, well, what's the difference? Anyway, it seems that Rudy suggested that Cocoanut Grove's Marcelle Poirier, who of course is North Main street's Marcelle, formerly Punchard's, should change her last name to its English equivalent, claiming that Poirier was too hard to pronounce.

He asked Marcelle what Poirier means in English—imagine that from Yale '27! So Marcelle told him that it meant "Pear Tree," and Rudy suggested that she'd better just make it "Tree."

"Marcelle Tree." Somehow it just doesn't sound like a particularly fetching name, and our opinion of Rudy's originality doesn't rise at all at this suggestion. Even Jack Benny might have contributed something like "Marcelle Sea," with marcel waves, and his pal Fred Allen might have made it Marcelle Bee. But we'd suggest that she make it Marcelle Poirier, and just tell Rudy the next time that it's easy—just put "P" before "worry" and add "A."

No One Injured in Auto Collision

No one was injured early Tuesday morning in a collision between two cars on Lowell street near Haggetts pond, although when police arrived, none of the occupants were at the scene. The two machines, damaged, were towed to the Shawsheen Motor Mart. Later it was found that the occupants had been removed to their homes.

The cars were both travelling toward Lowell, with a North Andover man and a Lowell man driving. It is claimed that one tried to pass the other, and was blinded by the lights of another machine coming in the opposite direction.

Officers David Gillespie and Thomas R. Dailey investigated.

PLAN CORONATION BALL

A coronation ball will be held May 14th by the British War Veterans of Andover. Plans will be discussed Sunday at the regular meeting of the veterans.

Pinocchio Dancer Ardent Student

Edwin Strawbridge, who will dance "Pinocchio" Friday afternoon, April 9, at 3.45 in the Memorial auditorium, is one of the most successful American dancers and a teacher known for his original methods.

The local production of "Pinocchio" is being sponsored by the three local Parent-Teacher associations and is one of the series of programs which have been procured through Junior Programs, Inc., a unique organization in New York City which acts as a national clearing house for entertainment programs designed exclusively for children.

Having studied the history of dancing from its origin, when primitive man returned from his adventures and reenacted for the villagers his encounters with wild beasts or enemy warriors, Edwin Strawbridge has evolved a method of teaching the meaning of dancing, as well as the technique of the art, not only to normal students but to the crippled and the blind as well. Besides developing perfect poise and the highest possible bodily perfection, his students must learn to think the natural rhythms of their interpretations.

In "Pinocchio," as well as in his other productions, Edwin Strawbridge has provided an elaborate and beautiful setting. The character masks were created by Bill Baird, famous young American craftsman whose masks have been used throughout the country by band leaders impersonating other members of their profession and whose puppet show was one of the outstanding attractions at the World's Fair. The costumes worn throughout the ballet were designed by Elizabeth Parsons who costumed Baird's famous puppets.

M. Wood Hill, American musician of note and graduate of Smith college, wrote the music especially for the scenario by Dorothy Coit, director of the King-Coit Children's theatre. The scenery, designed by Walter Roach for the episodes used in the story of the mischievous little puppet who came to life, are like illustrations from a fairy tale. Imaginative, colorful and arresting, the sets alone create a new feeling for an old dramatic art which children cannot soon forget.

Junior Programs, Inc. operates under the slogan, "Only the best is good enough for children," and "Pinocchio" proves it.

Male Choir Plans to Defend Title

Five members of the Andover Male choir attended the pre-convention rally of the New England Federation of Men's Glee clubs held in Fall River last Saturday evening. They were guests of the Fall River Men's Glee club at the First Congregational church where an excellent chicken pie supper was served. A total of 150 were present.

Representing Andover were J. Everett Collins, James P. Christie, Clinton H. Stevens, Henry Fairweather and Robert Maclaren. Other representatives were present from the Beethoven Glee club, South Manchester, Conn., the Anchor and Ark of Maynard, Highlands Glee club of Newton, Beverly Men's Singing club, Wollaston Glee club, Plymouth, Mass., Glee club, MacDowell Men's Singing club of Springfield, and the Pawtucket Glee club. Representatives from every musical society in Fall River were present as well as heads of the music departments of the public schools, the Kiwanis club and the Rotary club.

Mayor Murray of Fall River welcomed the gathering, and stated that he is anticipating the gala day on May first when the New England Federation convenes there for the annual contest and concert of the Glee clubs. All are working to make this the grandest event in the history of the Federation. All prizes for the contests are donated by Fall River citizens.

Last year the Andover Male choir won the highest honors of the Federation, and the competition now is more keen than ever. Any friends and associate members who desire to attend the concert and contest must have their applications for tickets in the hands of the secretary, Clinton H. Stevens, within the next ten days.

Only Three-Fourths of One-Fourth of These Buildings Still in Same Location

Of the four buildings pictured above, only three-fourths of one is still in the same position today. Samaritan house, at the extreme left, took a jaunt to Chapel avenue across Main street to School street during the kaleidoscopic changes of the last decade on the Hill. Today the Cochran church stands on this site. Down at the end of the street is a dwelling occupied at one time by Virgil D. Harrington, later moved across lots to its present location on Judson road, and now occupied by Frank M. Benton. The old Stone chapel was torn down with the advent of the Cochran church. There alone remains Foxcroft hall, then known as Phillips hall, but today it is only three stories high instead of the four stories pictured.

The Townsman will pay fifty cents for the loan of any picture found interesting enough for reproduction in the Townsman. The pictures must be confined to Andover in some way, either Andover places or Andover persons.

Mrs. G. Peterson of Chelmsford, Mass., writes:

"For eight years I suffered unbearable pains in my back, shoulders, and knees were so bad I could not walk. I began to think my case hopeless. In November, 1936, I heard about the good results of the Spalding treatment and I decided to try it. It is simply wonderful what this treatment did for me. Fine-Tooth Comb Check-up Should Be Made on All Departmental Expenditures

Before the annual town meeting the comment was frequently heard that it was unfortunate that the town departmental budgets came to such a high total, since it left very little leeway for any special articles that might be considered necessary by the voters. As it turned out, this situation had no bad effects this year, but since there will be times when the necessary special expenditures will go to a much higher point than they did this year, it would be well to see if in any way that huge departmental total can be kept down without impairing governmental efficiency.

Two committees are in a peculiar position as far as expenditure are concerned. If the voters want men on these boards who are really worthwhile citizens, they have to choose somebody who is capable enough to hold down a business position of his own. And if he is doing his own work as he should, he probably has very little time to devote to supervision of public funds. The actual spending of the money, the decision as to whether money shall be spent for this or for that, has to rest with a full-time paid employee, and if that employee is lax in any way, there are bound to creep in little extravagances that mount up into sizeable sums in the course of a year. These little items are hard to detect in the course of a committee meeting.

Why doesn't the finance committee do something about it? This group has the same handicap that the regular departmental boards have: to get a man capable of making a wise decision on town finances, you have to choose a man capable of holding an important position of his own, and such a man cannot afford to spend hours supervising, investigating minute expenditures. In other words the finance committee has to take the word of the departmental committee, and the latter in turn has had to take the word of the departmental head. And those little extravagances still go on.

Something should be done about this situation. There should be a real thorough check-up by someone—not merely an investigation which is based mainly on chats with committee members but rather a fine-tooth combing of all the expenditures to see whether any of the officials are lax, to see whether in some way that total departmental budgetary figure can be reduced. This is a difficult task, one that will take considerable time, but it is one that would bring in a worthwhile return to the taxpayer.

Siftings

Town Treasurer Thaxter Eaton, one of the business men in that gym class Wednesday night, was seen going into Hartigan's Pharmacy the next morning. Sloan's or Minard's?

What the Public Will won't, the town officials will.

Dr. Stowers ran several times before he was finally elected to the school board six years ago, and it looks as if he'll have to be defeated several times before he's defeated.

Do these strikers all get vacations later too?

Sues for $40,000 in Auto Fatality

Two suits for $20,000 each were filed in the Superior Civil court at Salem Tuesday as the aftermath of the collision on the morning of February 18 in which John Jenkins, local milk man, was killed. The suits were filed by Alice H. Jenkins, administratrix of the estate.

The two actions are brought against Fernand Bellefeuille and the driver, Ivan Bellefeuille, both of Bradford, Vt.

ECONOMIC ANGLES TO PEACE

The League of Women Voters study group on "Economic Angles to Peace" will hold its first meeting at the home of Mrs. John Barss on Friday, April 2, at 2.30 o'clock.

May Keep Contact with Departments

A plan to keep in constant contact with all the town departments throughout the year is being considered by the Andover Taxpayers' association and will probably be acted upon at the next meeting of the directors. Before town meeting the plan was discussed at one of the board meetings but was laid on the table because of the press of town meeting matters.

The plan as presented would have a small sub-committee appointed to confer with the departments, look into possible extravagances, etc., all with the aim of eliminating any waste that may have crept into the running of the town government. It is expected that the various departments would be willing to cooperate in such a venture.

Plan Improvements at Richardson School

Three bids were received Monday evening by the selectmen on the reshingling of the Richardson school, but they were rejected. New bids will be received from the same bidders next Monday with more detailed specifications.

A building committee and a grounds committee were chosen at the Shawsheen village community association at a meeting held in the administration building on Friday, the nineteenth.

These committees agreed to meet at the Richardson school on Sunday to discuss plans and alterations for the school building.

There is much community interest in this school project.

"REBUKE TO CITIZENS"

Dear Editor:

Knowing you to always exercise the will of the people I hope you will print the following:

Perhaps because on many occasions Federal and State legislators ignore the will of the people when they are once elected to office, certain members of the selectmen and school board committees of our town believe in following suit.

For reasons for which the voters are aware, the recent town election carried with it an endorsement of a certain member of the school committee, and rejection of another member. Dr. Nathaniel Stowers was the candidate for re-election who was defeated.

Only a few short weeks have passed since the March 1st decision of the people, and yet we witness certain members of the selectmen and school board committees meeting in joint session and appointing the defeated candidate to fill in the place of a vacancy.

This is not only a direct rebuke to the great majority of Andover's citizens who showed their disapproval of the candidacy of Dr. Stowers, but it is only more encouragement to those hundreds of disinterested citizens who contend that it is useless to go to the polls.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. BARNES

The following tribute to the late Mrs. Ralph N. C. Barnes was adopted at the last meeting of the school committee:

The school committee of Andover has suffered an irreparable loss in the death of May Evelyn Barnes. Mrs. Barnes was a member of the committee for six years and served as chairman of the teachers committee for five years. She brought to the committee the advantages of a fine education and wide experience in living and so was able to deal with the problems which came to her with wisdom and sound judgment.

Mrs. Barnes' charm and gracious friendliness made it a pleasure to be associated with her and we trust that we shall carry on with the same high ideals which she held for the schools of Andover.

LITHOGRAPHS

Lithographs by Albert Barker are being shown in the Print Room of the Addison Gallery until the 18th of April. Mr. Barker has made experiments, both in the method of drawing on the lithographic stone and in taking prints from it, and he claims to have improved the usual technique, making it possible to obtain a closer resemblance between the drawing on the stone and the finished print. His own prints are mostly landscapes and outdoor scenes. His drawing is delicate and painstaking, but the prints rather lack the variety of texture and value which is characteristic of lithography at its best.

Trudi Schoop to Dance April 20

The major dance event of the Spring season will be the performance which Trudi Schoop and her Comic Ballet of twenty-two dancers will present at George Washington hall, Tuesday evening, April 20. Her latest contribution is her "Blond Marie," a dance act in eight scenes with music by Paul Schoop.

As is characteristic of all Trudi Schoop's dance compositions, "Blond Marie," deals with the ordinary incidents of everyday life but deals with them in such a way as to move us to alternate our laughter with tears. Indeed, it is this talent for pathos that has caused Miss Schoop to be justly compared to our own great comedian, Charlie Chaplin, and to Europe's great clown, Grock.

Miss Schoop's career has many interesting aspects. She reversed the usual order of entering a profession by making her debut first and taking instructions in dancing afterward. Born in Zurich, of an old patrician family, she was early enrolled at the State Theater school by her mother who recognized her unusual histrionic talents. Later she went to Vienna where she studied ballet, and a little later we find her at the Duncan school. A triumphant tour of Germany and other European centers followed, but it was not until 1929, when dissatisfied with all that she had been doing, she cast conventional forms aside and after training and rehearsing her present company of twenty-two, launched her tragi-comedies in choreographic form. So great was her initial success that a continuous succession of triumphs in Europe and the Orient followed and last year led to S. Hurok's bringing her to this country. Her appearances in Boston and Andover are prior to her sailing for Europe where she will begin an extensive tour.

Youngster Slightly Hurt in Accident

Hector Pattullo, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Pattullo, of 198 North Main street, was slightly injured Tuesday afternoon about four when he was felled by a machine operated by Mrs. Moira K. Heffernan of Florence street.

Mrs. Heffernan reported to police that the boy ran from the sidewalk, and despite her driving over to the left he ran into the car. He was treated at the office of Dr. Walker and returned home, his injuries being slight bruises to the right thigh and ankle and abrasions of the fingers of both hands.

NOVEMBER CLUB LECTURE

As their second project of the year the ways and means committee have arranged an evening lecture by Mrs. Frank Mansfield Taylor on Friday, April 2, at 8.15. This is in answer to the demand of many for an opportunity for friends and husbands to hear this entertaining speaker on current events. Mrs. Taylor's popularity and her keen insight into a wide range of contemporary problems is attested by the many club members who have already taken advantage of the privilege of reserving tickets for this special lecture.

Textile Exhibit at Local Gallery

An exhibition of special interest in this district of industrial cities and textile mills is the exhibition of "Historical Influences in Contemporary American Textiles" being shown at the Addison Gallery from March 20 to April 21st. The purpose of this exhibition is to study the pattern, not the weave or materials, and the modern textiles shown are limited to figured drapery and upholstery fabrics. Mostly very new, these are shown together with examples of ancient design historic patterned textiles which may have inspired the modern American designer. Each museum piece has several modern derivations or parallels some of which are striking in their similarity. In other cases, the modern design, while being completely 20th century as to manner, has taken from the older pieces the type of subject, classical, quaint, or naturalistic, for its inspiration.

The major dance event of the Spring season will be the performance which Trudi Schoop and her Comic Ballet of twenty-two dancers will present at George Washington hall, Tuesday evening, April 20. Her latest contribution is her "Blond Marie," a dance act in eight scenes with music by Paul Schoop.

As is characteristic of all Trudi Schoop's dance compositions, "Blond Marie," deals with the ordinary incidents of everyday life but deals with them in such a way as to move us to alternate our laughter with tears. Indeed, it is this talent for pathos that has caused Miss Schoop to be justly compared to our own great comedian, Charlie Chaplin, and to Europe's great clown, Grock.

Miss Schoop's career has many interesting aspects. She reversed the usual order of entering a profession by making her debut first and taking instructions in dancing afterward. Born in Zurich, of an old patrician family, she was early enrolled at the State Theater school by her mother who recognized her unusual histrionic talents. Later she went to Vienna where she studied ballet, and a little later we find her at the Duncan school. A triumphant tour of Germany and other European centers followed, but it was not until 1929, when dissatisfied with all that she had been doing, she cast conventional forms aside and after training and rehearsing her present company of twenty-two, launched her tragi-comedies in choreographic form. So great was her initial success that a continuous succession of triumphs in Europe and the Orient followed and last year led to S. Hurok's bringing her to this country. Her appearances in Boston and Andover are prior to her sailing for Europe where she will begin an extensive tour.

He was treated at the office of Dr. Walker and returned home, his injuries being slight bruises to the right thigh and ankle and abrasions of the fingers of both hands.

NOVEMBER CLUB LECTURE

As their second project of the year the ways and means committee have arranged an evening lecture by Mrs. Frank Mansfield Taylor on Friday, April 2, at 8.15. This is in answer to the demand of many for an opportunity for friends and husbands to hear this entertaining speaker on current events. Mrs. Taylor's popularity and her keen insight into a wide range of contemporary problems is attested by the many club members who have already taken advantage of the privilege of reserving tickets for this special lecture.

The Real Question

"What is it now?" asked Mr. Big Business.

"Communication from your college son," answered Miss Stenog. "A short letter."

"How much is he short?"

FUTURE VICE PRESIDENT. Young, able, clear-headed, a junior executive at 28. Off on an important selling job for the firm. Goes by B and M — to review the facts and prepare his case enroute in relaxed comfort. We think he'll make the sale.

ROMANTIC WEEK-END. Gay house party ahead! "Think of my nerves, darling," says Bill. "It's a gruelling drive — with several hundred traffic lights. Let's go by B and M — can devote some attention to you that way. We will pick us up at the station."

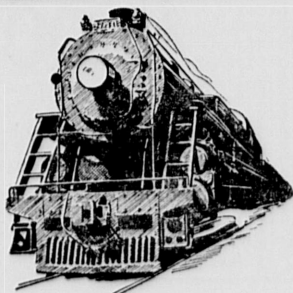

CAREER WOMEN? Not if two certain young men know it. Right now on their way to the railroad station. Low B and M commutation fares appeal to them as business girls on limited budgets. Our regular schedules get them to work on time every morning.

BIRTHDAY PARTY. First trip by train and excited about it. "Boy, we're travellin' — 70 miles an hour — that's speed — Can't average that by automobile. Look at us go — Gee, I want to be an engineer, Mother!"

YOUTH ON THE GO. Young executives seriously poring over lengthy reports — cheery voiced girls, school and college bound — future engineers mechanically-minded, short in their trousers but long in the knowledge of mechanical inventions — business girls as trim and efficient looking as a streamlined train. Yes — youth on the go — finding in travel by train an amazing economy much to their liking — Surprised, and frank in saying so, that the speed of trains so frequently surpasses that of automobiles. To them and to you the Boston and Maine promises "Top value for your 1937 travel dollar!"

NEWS

"Boston and Maine orders nearly $2,000,000 worth of new equipment including 55 new air-conditioned deluxe coaches, ultra smart in comfort, color and design.

Train travel now costs one-half as much as driving a small car.

Ask at any Boston and Maine office about special 1937 low fares.

attend as this will be a very interesting story of the Easter time in colored chalk pictures drawn by an artist.

The opening exercises will be led by the superintendent, Robert V. Deyermund.

The spring term quarterlies will be given to the teachers at this session.

Miss Helen Saunders was presented with an electric iron by the school, as a token of esteem for her valuable service as a teacher. She is to be married tomorrow and will live in Tewksbury.

An unfortunate occurrence took place just as the second degree was to be worked at the Grange meeting Tuesday. A member of the Grange who happened to be outside came in with the news that auto thieves were working outside. Recess was declared and owners of cars went out to see what was happening. It was discovered that some one had been stealing gas from the parked cars. A tube with which the gas was siphoned was left in the tank of the visiting deputy's car, a Chrysler, and most of the gas was gone. Evidently the thieves had been frightened away and didn't have time to pull the tube out. They also took the cap from the gas tank. The Grange will have cars parked for meetings watched in the future.

EDUCATION—FOR WHAT?

We all realize that education is most valuable, even necessary to us. Very little could be accomplished without it. There are many questions asked and many criticisms voiced pertaining to the problem of education, and these are often justifiable. One of the most common of these criticisms voiced by grown-ups is that the school children of today have too many things to do in school. They ask why we have so many different things, and want to know why we don't stick to the fundamentals of education, spend more time learning the three R's. Other parents wonder what some of the studies are that we have; they didn't have them, they say.

How shall we answer these questions? How shall we meet these criticisms? The answer hinges on what we conceive to be the purpose of education. One's answer would be, to prepare ourselves for preparatory school or college. Then we must plan our curriculum to fit their requirements. Or shall we decide what kind of a world we want and train for that? Might that not be practice of propaganda, such as exists in the German schools today? Is that what we want? Or shall we say, "Things are now changing rapidly and promise to keep on doing so. Then let us train for adjustability." It is very necessary that we be able to adapt ourselves to every situation or, as Kipling says, learn "to keep your head when all about you are losing theirs." All three purposes have their merits, but the last one seems best because when trained for it the pupil may well be able to succeed in the others, too.

Now the problem arises as to how we should do it. It is a big problem, but the following two or three things should help: first, skill in fact finding. We should know where to look for information, how to find it, and how to assemble it. Second, the pupil of today should possess a treasured collection of facts—but his brain should not be an attic crowded with too many things to be remembered or used. Once a man's intelligence was rated by the multitude and variety of facts he knew. Now educators believe we should learn only what we are capable of understanding and using at a particular grade level. A third is the ability to live satisfactorily in a community, among people. Today there are many sad examples of walking encyclopedias who cannot mingle successfully with people. A quotation in Webster's dictionary says, "To prepare us for complete living is the function which education has to discharge." A functional body of information, skill in fact-finding, and right attitudes are necessary. Additional information we can and should acquire as the need for it arises.—WARREN L. RICHARDSON

FINALS IN PING-PONG

On Monday many clubs voted to report to the auditorium to watch the final matches of ping pong.

In the consolation tournament C. Stowers easily defeated D. Markert in three games with the following scores: 21-15, 21-8, 21-11.

In the championship game between Simmers and Bolton, it was necessary to play five games as Simmers won the first two matches 21-14 and 23-21, and Bolton was victor in the third and fourth with the scores 21-14 and 21-19. In the fifth game, however, Bolton won by the wide margin of 21-8. Thus Bolton is the champion ping pong player in the junior high school.—F. C. ROBERTS, JR.

BASKETBALL CHAMPIONS

The girls of room 12 claim the championship title of the series of basketball games that have been carried on in recent months. They have won every game and forfeited none. The award was close for room 13 was a close second being defeated only once. Helen Carmichael was captain of the winning team and her players were Dorothy Campbell, Harriet Broughton, Janet Carter, Ruth Cashman, Helen Crockett, Marjorie Dean, Doris Bourdelais and Elizabeth Campbell.—DOROTHY BARNET

STUDENT COUNCIL NOTES

NOTES

Jack Mudge of 9-1 is in the hospital recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

Many pupils from the junior high are members of the Thursday afternoon dancing class carried on by Miss Sheridan of Lawrence.

In the Science classes some very interesting projects are being carried out by the children. In 8-1 James McMahon has been making a study of guns and has a sub-project on gunpowder. Anne McCarthy, in her work on dentistry, has taken an impression of her own teeth.

Also, there is quite a display of various types of aeroplanes arranged by a number of pupils.

Willard Mills of grade nine has constructed a very interesting aquarium.

All members of Grade eight have received instructions from Miss Robinson on the use of reference books. During the next week or two all students will go to the library to take a test on this material. In this way the children are really learning how to use the books in the library in an intelligent manner.

Last Friday Miss Parker's home room enjoyed an entertainment during the regular home room period. Postcard slides were shown on the Chicago World Fair.—MADELEINE GROUT

Recently the Stanford tests in history and geography, standardized for use in schools throughout the United States, were given to all pupils of the eighth grade. The results were interesting and gratifying.

As a whole the grade stood more than a half year above the standard in both geography and history. In one division the entire class stood above the grade standard in history and all but two in geography.

On Thursday 83 enjoyed a book brought to class by Phillips Foster. Published in 1850, "Conscience and the Constitution, with remarks on the recent speech of the Hon. Daniel Webster in the Senate of the United States on the subject of Slavery," it was the work of Moses Stuart of the Theological Seminary at Andover.

The recent reading of "Ivanhoe" in English has made the social studies unit on the feudal system of Europe more interesting and understandable.

A special commendation card presented to Augustin Rapisardi, president of the student government, for exceptional citizenship bore the following quotation: "The good citizen is one who does not live for himself alone; one who is concerned in the welfare of his fellows."

Outsiders who witnessed the presentation of the play, "News of the Adoption of the Constitution," by 8-1, commented on its timeliness. Its lines were largely devoted to comment on our plan of government. Everybody seemed to agree with John White when he said of the Supreme Court arrangement, "Those men won't be afraid to render decisions."

The common fly has a heart and complete circulatory system.

Something You'll Never See Again

This picture was taken by Walter Billings only about a half a year ago, but today it is a matter of history. The little old frame structure which housed Petersen's Men's shop, formerly Frank L.

Cole's, and John's Barber shop, formerly John Soehrens', was torn down shortly after this picture was taken, and today in its place stands a modern five-and-ten cent store and Carter's candy store.

"Yessir! We'll All Be A-Flyin' Soon"

Attention, drivers! Let's talk about inattention.

High on the list of traffic sinners is the man whose eyes wander all over the landscape when they should be on the road ahead and whose mind, if any, is always on vacation from the business of driving.

Not only does he risk his own life, and the lives of his wife and kiddies, but he is also a menace to every other driver on the road.

Travelers Insurance Company statistics show that 3,400 persons were killed last year when motorists drove off the roadway. Another 4,000 met death when they got over on the wrong side of the road. Most accidents of that type wouldn't happen to alert drivers.

Enlist today in the ranks of Safe Drivers. Eyes front! Atten-shun!

Plans are underway for an International Folk Festival, to be held on May 21, in George Washington hall, under the auspices of the International Institute of Lawrence.

We aren't enough of a Fascist to advocate black shirts the year round, but they'd sure be great for making little table slips less noticeable in the blueberry pie season.

Pictorial Story-Telling in Peirce Exhibit

An exhibition of paintings and water colors by Waldo Peirce, who graduated from Phillips academy in 1903, is now being held at the Addison Gallery, the first one-man show which he has had there. Any visitor to the Gallery must soon feel aware of the presence of these pictures—they are so fresh and so alive. Downstairs the water colors, shorthand representations of New England landscapes, Spanish or Western scenes, mingle with the surprisingly conventional water colors by Reginald Marsh; upstairs, the largest exhibition room houses, mostly, the Peirce family—those exuberant, fat, long-haired mischievous little boys that are his most successful subjects. The Peirce twins and their undistinguishable sister, may become almost as well-known child protagonists in art as Donatello's singing angels or the Infant Samuel at Prayer. They have already been compared to the Katzenjammer Kids, and their pictures do have some of the charm of the comic strip. Here they are making a lot of noise, there they play riotously, or they have been finally caught by their mother and are undergoing forcible grooming. It is fun to watch their activities and adventures from picture to picture.

Peirce has not been slow to realize the fascination of pictorial story-telling, and in some pictures where the twins do not appear, for instance in night-clubs, which would hardly be the place for them, they are replaced by the older members of the family, together with an occasional well-known friend. Waldo Peirce himself, large and bearded and smoking a pipe, is quite easy to spot. All this jolly family party is really hard to resist, and one does not feel that there is insincerity in its portrayal, in spite of exploitations of Peirce's personality such as the slightly nauseating article which appeared a little while since in "Esquire." Unfortunately it appears to be almost obligatory for any one bearded and jolly, with a fairly vigorous physique to be labelled in these days as "Rabelaisian."

After leaving Andover, Peirce went to Harvard, where he played on the football team; later he travelled a great deal, and was in France during the war, driving an ambulance. Now he has settled down in Bangor, Maine. As a painter, in the course of his adventurous career, Peirce is said to have been influenced by Zuloaga, with whom he worked, by Goya (because he paints bulls now and then?) and by Matisse, whom he admires. The catalogue of the painters who have "influenced" the painter in question is apt to be rather dull; what is more interesting to know of Peirce's personal history is that he paints continually and leaves many of his pictures unfinished, because they do not satisfy him. Evidently he prefers to make many fresh attempts, perhaps using the same subject, until finally it is right, rather than to work assiduously on the same canvas, painting out and repainting until the desired result is attained. The posed portraits are to me the least interesting of Peirce's work. The most successful are the ones where he works swiftly, where he paints masses of flowers, just stuck into a pail to keep them fresh, or else groups of people actively engaged. There is nothing meditative about Peirce's best paintings, nothing arranged, nothing affected. He quickly notes a scene, its rhythm of movement, and harmony of color. Reality and vitality are the characteristics of Peirce's paintings. He achieves these qualities by the directness of his approach, his rich color and solid form.

50 cents

In October the Townsman started using pictures on a far more extensive scale than was the case before. This feature we hope to enlarge. We will pay 50 cents for any picture loaned to us by a reader if it is found suitable, interesting enough for use in the paper. Pictures MUST be connected with Andover in some way, either Andover news, Andover incidents or Andover people at home or abroad. See the editor.

BEWARE THE HAWK!

S-h-h-h-h!

The town officials are going to try to put something over on the newspapermen.

But it's only a volley ball game. After the first gym class Wednesday night some of the town house officials suggested a volley ball game between a group of town officials and the newspapermen. And so sometime in the near future Andover's Fourth Estate will stop punching the keys and start punching the ball with the town hall boys on the other side of the net.

To Show Pictures of Scotland Tour

Motion pictures of a trip through Scotland will be presented Monday evening at a meeting of the Arbroathians in Square and Compass club hall at eight o'clock. A jitney social will follow. Both are open to the public. Sandy MacFarlane, well-known Scotch singer, will show the pictures.

A business meeting of the Arbroathians will start at seven.

Departments to Pool Gasoline Purchases

The selectmen and the Board of Public Works agreed Wednesday evening to pool their gasoline purchases, so that the fire department vehicles, the police cars, the tree and moth department machines and the B. P. W. cars and trucks will all be supplied from the same source.

Selectman Shepard estimates that the move will save the town about $500 a year.

FIRE CHIEF BACK

Fire Chief Charles F. Emerson has returned from Florida where he has been spending several weeks' leave of absence. He reports that he is feeling much better. He will return to active duty on April 5th.

STAMP MAP AT JUNIOR LIBRARY

Do you know what a stamp map is? Neither did we, so we asked Willard Mills, who had recently made one, to let us see it. Willard, a member of the ninth grade at the Andover Junior high school, obtained a map of North America, and selected stamps from his splendid collection, consisting of those from various parts of Mexico, Canada, Iceland, West Indies, as well as from the United States, and placed them around the map, and by the means of pins indicated the place from which each stamp came. This exhibit will be in the junior room for another week. It is hoped that others will take the opportunity to see it, and be inspired to make one.

Commendation to Local Magazine

Special commendation as one of the leading "house magazines" was earned recently by The Century Plant, published by the Andover Insurance offices. Printer's Ink, the foremost journal of the advertising and sales promotion field, gave this commendation to the magazine, a complete file of which is kept at the New York Public Library in the Business Periodical Division.

The magazine is printed at the Andover Press.
